

Geek translation pairwork

TAKE TURNS EXPLAINING THOSE TERMS, AS IF YOU WERE AN IT
SUPPORT TECHNICIAN HELPING OUT A NON SPECIALIST

Popularising technical language

- ▶ Useful language:
- ▶ A USB key refers to an object which is used to save data.
- ▶ It is for saving data (sert à)
- ▶ A USB key allows you to save data (vous permet de).
- ▶ It acts as...
- ▶ For example/ for instance...
- ▶ It's as if (c'est comme si)
- ▶ FBI stands for Federal Bureau of Investigation.

1

- ▶ Explain what the hard drive is. Also what is the RAM and what is it for?

2

► What is a class in Java?

- ▶ What is Linux and what's the difference with Windows?

- Explain what bandwidth is and what are the traditional issues related to it.

- ▶ What is cloud computing and is it safe enough for businesses with critical data?

- ▶ What's BYOD and what are the potential problems for IT services?

- ▶ What's a WEP key and what is it for?

- ▶ What's HTML and what is it for?

- ▶ What's a GPS? How does it work?

- ▶ What's spyware and how does it work?

- ▶ What's an IP address and what is it for? And what is the difference with a Mac address?

- ▶ What's acrobat reader and why do I always need a new version?

- ▶ What is a server and what is it for? And by the way, what is a virtual server? What are the pros and cons of a virtual server?

- ▶ What is open-source software and is it always free?

15

▶ Mac vs PC?

- ▶ What's an operating system and what is it for?

- ▶ What's a Trojan and how can I protect my PC from them?

- ▶ What does a back end programmer do?

- ▶ What does 'responsive' mean for an application?